PL Design

For the three children of this house, designer Pavleta Landjeva created a cozy play space, inspired by a Manuel Canovas quatrefoil fabric in a lavender color. Though the shade of that swatch was a little too bright for this room, it did inspire the calming palette of taupe and lavender used throughout. On the walls, Landjeva used three different shades of lavender, fading from darkest to lightest, floor to ceiling. The space isn't huge, so a twin-size daybed (featuring a quatrefoil cut-out) with a trundle is a perfect fit—and great for sleepovers. The green detail on the backs of the bookcases was added towards the end of the project, when Landjeva decided the space was a little too monochromatic and needed an extra punch. “The room is playful, but functional and practical,” says the designer. “We created a space they could grow into.”
